WITH A FOREWORD BY TERRY TEMPEST WILLIAMS

Join us for this important dialogue about conservation, the environmental sciences, and America's future.

Machlis served as a Science Advisor to the Director, National Park Service in the Obama administration, and is currently University Professor of Environmental Sustainability at Clemson University. Dr. Machlis received his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Washington in Seattle, and his Ph.D. in human ecology from Yale. He will be discussing his new book, The Future of Conservation in America: A Chart for Rough Water, recently published by the University of Chicago Press. Written with Jon Jarvis, the eighteenth director of the National Park Service, this book examines the current state of American conservation, and proposes practical and effective steps to advance conservation in the future.
